3. In mid-March, the Soviet officers of the individual commissaries showed a marked disinclination to tuy political books, but they wented nowels, particularly trenslations of American and English books. Officers Volzvech, Gitum and Mashkin stated that they were not willing to pay for the political books offered to them as these tooks would not be read butburng@ or piled up with other books of the same type. None of the officers was ready to take the book "The struggle of the French people against Hitler and his essociates". However, this book and a number of other books was finally forced on the officers by the chief of the Fasa.
